

WHAT LEGACY WILL WE LEAVE?

We live lives where we are happy to serve others, to nurture our children, to be valuable members of society, to see and implement change, and to be living epistles of Jesus Christ. It is our honor to serve in whatever capacity God allows. It is our honor to be caretakers and positive examples for our children. Most of all, it is our honor to be servants of Christ in every aspect of our existence. We pray that our legacy will be in those areas for which we have given great attention and have made positive impacts in our lives and in those whom we serve.

Giving is something we enjoy doing. Everything we have belongs to God. Our time, our possessions, and our hearts all belong to Him. We take many opportunities to give of what we have. We aim to teach others that everything we have belongs to God; that is better to give than to receive; that there is great return both now and eternally for giving to others.

We have sacrificed, just as most parents, for the sake of our children. God gave them to us so that we can nurture their gifts and raise them to be God-fearing men and women and well-rounded members of society. We desire for them to know that God has given them great talents and gifts. It is up to us to push them to pursue and to occupy any opportunity that fits their desires. In raising our little ones, we have learned to push for the best for them. We have learned that anything is possible if we want to obtain it. For them, we fight hard in order to leave them with memories that we sacrificed, we pursued, and we were victors as we sought for the best for them, our loves, our wonderful gifts from God.

We believe that Jesus Christ wants for us to be living epistles for Him. Without ever saying a word, others should know that we belong to Him and that we are servants of Him. We seek to possess the power that He promised us and for signs, wonders, and miracles to follow us as we work to bring restoration the kingdom here on earth and to help establish His kingdom here on earth.
